1. USCIS To Accept FY 2011 H-1B Petitions Beginning April 1

U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) began accepting H-1B petitions subject to the fiscal year (FY) 2011 cap on April 1, 2010. Cases will be considered accepted on the date that USCIS takes possession of a properly filed petition with the correct fee, not the date the petition is postmarked. As of the date of writing, we have not been advised as to how many petitions were received in the first days of filing.

The fiscal year cap (numerical limitation on H-1B petitions) for FY 2011 is 65,000. The first 20,000 H-1B petitions filed on behalf of individuals who have earned a U.S. master's degree or higher are exempt from the H-1B cap.

USCIS said it will monitor the number of petitions received and will announce the date on which the agency receives the necessary number of petitions to meet the H-1B cap. If needed, USCIS will randomly select the petitions required to reach the numerical limit from those received on the final receipt date. USCIS will reject cap-subject petitions that are not selected, as well as those received after the final receipt date.

Petitions for new H-1B employment are exempt from the annual cap if the beneficiaries will work at institutions of higher education or related or affiliated nonprofit entities, nonprofit research organizations, or governmental research organizations. Petitions filed on behalf of beneficiaries who will work only in Guam or the Commonwealth of the Northern Marianas Islands are exempt from the H-1B cap until December 31, 2014. Employers may continue to file petitions for these cap-exempt H-1B categories seeking work dates starting in FYs 2010 or 2011.

Petitions filed on behalf of current H-1B workers who have been counted previously against the cap also do not count toward the H-1B cap. Accordingly, USCIS will continue to process petitions filed to:

- extend the amount of time a current H-1B worker may remain in the U.S.;
- change the terms of employment for current H-1B workers;
- allow current H-1B workers to change employers; or
- allow current H-1B workers to work concurrently in a second H-1B position.

USCIS has developed detailed information, including a checklist, to assist in the completion and submission of a FY 2011 H-1B petition.

2. USCIS Stops Allowing H-1B Filings With Uncertified LCAs

U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) announced on March 10, 2010, that it will not extend the period in which it temporarily accepted H-1B petitions filed with uncertified labor condition applications (LCAs). USCIS explained that due to processing delays associated with the Department of Labor's (DOL) "iCERT" online filing system, USCIS had responded to requests from the public by temporarily allowing H-1B petitions to be filed with uncertified LCAs. This temporary measure went into effect on November 5, 2009, and expired on March 9, 2010.

USCIS said that as of March 10, 2010, it is rejecting any H-1B petition filed without an LCA certified by the DOL.

The announcement is available at <http://www.uscis.gov/portal/site/uscis/menuitem.5af9bb95919f35e66f614176543f6d1a/?vgnnextoid=f73a042a31a47210VgnVCM100000082ca60aRCRD&vgnnextchannel=c94e6d26d17df110VgnVCM1000004718190aRCRD>.

3. DHS Announces E-Verify Initiatives

The Department of Homeland Security (DHS) announced a trio of E-Verify initiatives on March 17, 2010, including (1) a new agreement with the Department of Justice intended to streamline the adjudication process in cases of E-Verify misuse and discrimination; (2) an informational telephone hotline for workers seeking E-Verify information; and (3) new training videos in English and Spanish on E-Verify procedures and policies, employee rights, and employer responsibilities.

The Memorandum of Agreement signed between USCIS and the Department of Justice's Office of Special Counsel for Unfair Immigration-Related Employment Practices establishes a streamlined process for addressing potential cases of discrimination and employer misuse of E-Verify and establishes a protocol between USCIS and the Department of Justice for referring matters that fall within the agencies' respective jurisdictions.

The USCIS E-Verify help line will offer employees information about the E-Verify process, as well as assistance in completing the Form I-9 (Employment Eligibility Verification). Callers can also use the help line to file complaints about possible discrimination or employer misuse of the E-Verify program. The hotline number is (888) 897-7781. It is expected to be active beginning April 5, 2010.

The two new educational training videos were created by the DHS Office for Civil Rights and Civil Liberties and are viewable at <http://www.dhs.gov/e-verify> and <http://www.youtube.com/ushomelandsecurity>.

DHS reports that more than 192,000 participating employers currently use E-Verify at more than 705,000 worksites nationwide to electronically verify their workers' employment eligibility. Since October 1, 2009, E-Verify has processed more than six million queries.

4. ABIL Meets With USCIS, Proposes Immigration Reforms

On March 3, 2010, the Alliance of Business Immigration Lawyers (ABIL) met with Alejandro Mayorkas, Director of U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS), and several members of his leadership team. ABIL said it believes that employment-based immigration reforms should encompass changes in both nonimmigrant and immigrant visa categories so that the U.S. becomes the most attractive global destination for highly skilled and essential workers.

ABIL noted inconsistent application of regulations from office to office and recent sudden changes announced by USCIS, such as the delay in the I-9 effective date, which have resulted in companies struggling to meet moving targets and comply with the law. Mr. Mayorkas noted USCIS' successes but also acknowledged some mistakes. He said USCIS is reviewing policies and field guidance and will determine what should be reaffirmed, withdrawn, or revised in light of input from stakeholders and best practices. He said the agency is developing a system for receiving comments from stakeholders before any new policy change.

ABIL emphasized that H-1B employers should have the right to an attorney during site visits. Moreover, ABIL requested that USCIS reconsider its determination that an individual does not continue to be in lawful status while a case is on appeal.

Among other things, ABIL proposed legitimate avenues under the immigration laws for entrepreneurs to start U.S. businesses, large and small, and thereby obtain work visas and permanent residence. ABIL also proposed legalizing the status of the undocumented in the U.S. so that they may be employed lawfully and contribute to the growth of the economy and the welfare and well-being of the U.S. and its citizens.

ABIL's membership includes 20 of the top U.S. business immigration law firms, each led by a prominent member of the U.S. immigration bar. ABIL member firms employ over 200 attorneys (400+ total staff) devoted to business immigration in 22 major U.S. cities, plus Brussels, Cologne, Hong Kong, Istanbul, Lima, London, Mexico City, Montreal, Monterrey, Mumbai, Sao Paulo, Shanghai, Sydney, Tokyo, Toronto and Vancouver.

5. Office of Foreign Labor Certification Releases Application for Temporary Employment Certification in Fillable PDF Format

To support implementation of the new H-2A regulations and current H-2B regulations, the Department of Labor's Office of Foreign Labor Certification (OFLC) is making available the ETA Form 9142, Application for Temporary Employment Certification, in a fillable PDF format. The OFLC said the new format provides users with the option to save and reuse the information on the form for future applications.

The fillable form is available at http://www.foreignlaborcert.doleta.gov/pdf/ETA_Form_9142.pdf.

6. DOS Proposes Increase in Passport Fees

The Department of State has proposed an increase in fees for passport application services:

- From $100 to $135 for a first-time U.S. passport book for adults (age 16 and over)
- From $75 to $110 for passport renewal (age 16 and over only)
- From $85 to $105 for a passport for minors (under age 16)

The fee for expedited service will remain $60.

Over the last five years, the Department noted, demand for passports has increased to an average of 15 million per year. In fiscal year (FY) 2005, the Department issued 10.1 million passports; issuances peaked at 18.4 million in FY 2007.

The U.S. Passport Book and U.S. Passport Card for adults are valid for 10 years. Passports for minors under age 16 are valid for five years.

The proposed rule is available at <http://edocket.access.gpo.gov/2010/pdf/2010-2816.pdf>.

7. DOS Provides Information on 'Frequently Misunderstood Points'

The Department of State's April 2010 Visa Bulletin, section D, contains information on "frequently misunderstood points." Topics include the reasons behind fluctuations in demand for visa numbers; per-country limits; and oversubscription.

Among other things, the bulletin notes that there is a significant amount of demand each month from applicants who have priority dates earlier than the applicable cut-off dates. In addition, fluctuations in demand can cause cut-off date movement to slow, stop, or even retrogress. Retrogression is particularly possible near the end of the fiscal year as visa issuances approach the annual limitations.

Further, the bulletin notes, the annual per-country limitation of 7 percent is a cap that visa issuances to any single country may not exceed. Applicants compete for visas primarily on a worldwide basis. The country limitation, the bulletin states, "serves to avoid monopolization of virtually all the annual limitation by applicants from only a few countries," but notes that "[t]his limitation is not a quota to which any particular country is entitled, however."

The April 2010 Visa Bulletin is available at http://www.travel.state.gov/visa/frvi/bulletin/bulletin_4747.html.

8. DOS Eliminates Nonimmigrant Visa Reciprocity Fees for Mexicans, Updates Schedule

As of February 22, 2010, the Department of State eliminated all nonimmigrant visa reciprocity fees for Mexican citizens and updated the reciprocity schedule. Under the previous schedule, a provision for Mexican TN and TD visa holders allowed them to pay for up to three years of visa validity at the time of the first issuance. The new schedule no longer includes that provision, and TN and TD visa validity is now limited to 12 months, the same period of time permitted U.S. citizens working in Mexico before they must renew their FM3 work permits. There is no fee for the TN and TD visas. All applicants must still pay the application fee, however.

The visa reciprocity table is available at http://travel.state.gov/visa/frvi/reciprocity/reciprocity_3733.html.

9. USCIS Extends Deferred Enforced Departure for Liberians

On March 19, 2010, U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) automatically extended employment authorization for Liberian nationals covered under Deferred Enforced Departure (DED) through September 30, 2010, following President Barack Obama's announcement of his decision to extend DED through September 30, 2011, for qualified Liberians and those persons without nationality who last habitually resided in Liberia. USCIS said that the sixth-month automatic extension of existing Employment Authorization Documents (EADs) will permit eligible Liberians to continue working while they file their applications for new EADs that will cover the full 12 months of the DED extension and for USCIS to complete processing and issuance of those new EADs.

Although DED was scheduled to end for Liberian nationals on March 31, 2010, President Obama determined that there are compelling foreign policy reasons to continue deferring enforced departure from the U.S. for eligible Liberian nationals presently living in the U.S. under the existing grant of DED for 18 additional months.

Certain individuals are ineligible for DED, USCIS noted, including Liberians who did not have temporary protected status (TPS) on September 30, 2007, and are therefore not covered under current DED; certain criminals; persons subject to the mandatory bars to TPS; and persons whose removal is in the interest of the U.S.

In addition to automatically extending the validity of employment authorization documents for Liberian nationals covered under DED, USCIS published a notice in the Federal Register on March 30, 2010, with instructions on how to obtain employment authorization for the remainder of the DED extension. The automatic extension covers EADs issued on Form I-766, Employment Authorization Document, bearing an expiration date of March 31, 2010. These EADs must also bear the notation "A-11" on the face of the card under "Category."

10. DHS Adds Greece to VWP

On March 9, 2010, the Department of Homeland Security designated Greece as a member of the Visa Waiver Program (VWP). Greek nationals can travel under the VWP beginning April 5, 2010. Potential Greek travelers may apply for travel authorization approval under the Electronic System for Travel Authorization (ESTA) beginning immediately. ESTA approval is now required for all VWP travelers wishing to enter the U.S. DHS published a final rule on the designation of Greece on March 31, 2010.

For more information on the VWP and a list of participating countries, see http://travel.state.gov/visa/temp/without/without_1990.html. The final rule is available at <http://edocket.access.gpo.gov/2010/pdf/2010-7211.pdf>.

11. ABIL Global: Temporary Foreign Workers - An Important Source of Labor Supply in Canada

Canada's Temporary Foreign Worker Program enables Canadian employers to hire eligible foreign nationals to work for them in Canada for a specified duration, provided they can demonstrate that the employers cannot find a suitable Canadian/permanent resident to do the job and that the entry of the foreign national will not have a negative impact on the Canadian labor market. Employers must note that all individuals wishing to work in Canada require a work permit.

In most cases, unless an exemption is available (a discussion of which is outside the scope of this article), an employer must obtain a favorable labor market opinion (LMO) from Human Resources and Skills Development Canada/Service Canada (Service Canada) before the foreign national can apply to Citizenship and Immigration Canada (CIC) to obtain a work permit.

An LMO is Service Canada's opinion on the likely impact that hiring the foreign national will have on the Canadian labor market.

If an LMO is required to hire a particular foreign national, the prospective Canadian employer must submit an application to Service Canada setting out, among other things: the occupation for which the foreign national is required; details of the job offer including wages and working conditions that will apply to the foreign worker; advertising and recruitment efforts on the employer's part to hire a Canadian or permanent resident to fill the position; the benefits that the foreign worker's employment may have to the Canadian labor market; a copy of the employment contract (required in some cases); the number of Canadians/permanent residents currently employed in the organization; whether any Canadians/permanent residents were laid off in the 12 months preceding the application; and education, experience, and skills (including language skills) required for the position.

The advertising requirements with which an employer must comply depend on the skill level of the occupation for which the LMO is being sought, having regard to the National Occupational Classification (NOC) Skill Levels O, A, B, C, and D. Generally, some combination of advertising on the National Job Bank (or the equivalent in Saskatchewan, Quebec, or the Northwest Territories) and/or conducting similar recruitment activities consistent with the practice within the occupation (e.g., Internet job sites, national newspapers, consulting unions, newsletters, or professional associations) is required for a minimum number of days and for a specified duration prior to making the LMO application. However, the specific requirements vary depending on the occupation at issue and should be carefully considered in each individual case.

Employers should seek legal advice to ensure they comply with the requisite advertising standards applicable to their particular case, because failure to comply with the advertising efforts required for the particular NOC level and category at issue will result in an LMO being denied.

If a favorable LMO is issued, the employer must send a copy of the written confirmation to the worker along with a signed job offer (and employment contract, if required). The foreign national then applies to CIC for a work permit, the issuance of which depends on the foreign national meeting admissibility requirements and is within the discretion of the CIC officer and Canada Visa and Border Services officer assessing the work permit application and the foreign national's entry into Canada, respectively.

Employers should be aware that any LMO issued to them expires 6 months from the issuance date and unless, within this time frame, the foreign national has applied to CIC for a work permit and certain other requirements have been met, the LMO will be deemed to expire and the employer will need to apply for a new LMO to hire a foreign worker.

Also, it should be noted that extensions of an LMO are no longer permitted. The elimination of the extension application is of particular importance to employers wishing to continue the employment of a foreign national beyond the duration of his or her current work permit. Employers should seek legal advice for their particular situation to ensure that they apply for a new LMO in a timely fashion so they can continue to employ their chosen foreign workers as desired.

Legal advice should also be sought regarding proposed changes to the Temporary Foreign Worker Program that will introduce a number of factors applicable to the assessment of the genuineness of an employer's job offer of employment under this program. These proposed changes, if enacted, will lead to a more rigorous approach to the assessment of LMO and LMO-exempt cases.

New USCIS blog. U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) has launched The Beacon, the agency's official blog and newest tool that provides immigration-related information and "fosters an open dialogue with the public."

USCIS said The Beacon is intended to provide an important resource for information about USCIS as well as "a forum through which readers can engage USCIS staff and others who are interested in immigration and naturalization issues." USCIS said readers "are encouraged to submit comments, ideas, concerns, and constructive criticism."

USCIS will review all comments before posting. Detailed guidance is provided on the blog under the comment policy. The Beacon is available at <http://www.uscis.gov/blog>.

H-1B supply and demand in 2010 and beyond. The National Foundation for American Policy (NFAP) has released a study, "H-1B Visas By the Numbers: 2010 and Beyond," which concludes that demand for H-1Bs will contribute to employers likely reaching the annual cap in the new fiscal year. "The supply of H-1B visas has been exhausted during or before each of the past seven fiscal years, often leaving employers with no choice but to hire skilled foreign nationals outside the United States or see these scientists, engineers and professionals lost to competitors overseas," said NFAP Executive Director Stuart Anderson. With the annual flow of H-1Bs representing only 0.06 percent of the U.S. labor force in 2009, the study notes, arguments that H-1B professionals overwhelm the U.S. workforce are not supported by the facts. Surveys of Indian and Chinese professionals who have left the U.S. show that visa constraints played a role in their decision to leave. This exodus, the study argues, will continue absent immigration law reform. Liberalizing H-1B and green card limitations would help employers innovate and create more jobs in the U.S., the study concludes.

The NFAP study is available at <http://www.nfap.com/pdf/1003h1b.pdf>.
